

Figure S8: Plots of standard error of residuals between populations based on models generated by treemix, from 0 to 10 migration edges. High residuals indicate the model underestimates the data's co-variance, which could be a sign more migrations are needed. Low residuals may indicate the two populations are too close in the graph due to unmodeled migration elsewhere.